What are the causes - and is there a cure for cancer? Is it true that in some places in the world the cancer rate for under-25-year-olds has risen dramatically over the past 15 years [circa 1988]and, in some areas, the leukaemia rate is five times higher than the normal incidence? Why is bowel cancer 19% higher in Scotland than in the rest of the UK? And why is the UK incidence of cancer the second highest in the world? These serious questions are discussed in Jan de Vries' latest book, Cancer and Leukaemia: An Alternative Approach. The author has researched both problems for many years and, as a member of the Cancer Control Society, he has worked with many of the world's leading specialists in the alternative approach to cancer. Great advances have been made in recent years, including the discovery of the mineral germanium and its astonishing healing powers, all of which offer more understanding, more hope and more assistance for cancer sufferers than ever before. In his book, Jan de Vries explains what cancer patients can do at home to help themselves. He emphasises the need for a positive approach to cancer and leukaemia, relieving the inevitable stress through exercises and visualization techniques. Above all, he describes a variety of complimentary methods which have proved effective in the prevention and control of these illnesses and how relief can be obtained, working through the body's immune system, which helps to stimulate the body's immune system, which helps to stimulate the body's defence mechanisms. An indispensable book for cancer patients and their families, Cancer and Leukaemia: An Alternative Approach opens a few previously closed doors in the field of complementary medicine and offers practical advice and hope for the future. --- from book's back cover
