Dr. Peter Boxall is a lecturer in English Literature at the University of Sussex. He has published widely on twentieth- and twenty-first-century fiction and drama.

Some of these book titles are for someone who is going to be an English professor. I am a well-read person. I've seen better lists. It's okay. This book goes way past the boundaries of Milton, Dostoyevsky, Tolstoy & Proust. Knock yourself out with this list.

all lists are arbitrary. but a fun and interesting compilation. The reviews are short and thought provoking, not necessarily what I would have said. A few books I would never have read were they not included.

I agree with a lot of the other reviews that too many of the "Real" classics are left out. I think the problem is: when you ask for authors around the world to list the must read books each of their prejudices for their own countries authors comes out. That is probably why so many of the books chosen are written since the 1900's. Although most of the books chosen are probably great books to read, are three books by Toni Morrison really must reads over The Canterbury Tales, The Iliad, The Odyssey, The Aeneid, Shakespeare, A Tale of Two Cities or An American Tragedy. Has anyone ever read "Aztec" by Gary Jennings? I was at a book store in Crested Butte, Colorado and I told the owner that "Aztec" was my favorite book and that he should read it. Seven years later I was back in Crested Butte and when I walked into the bookstore the owner immediately said to me "I remember you. You are the one that told me to read "Aztec". It is the best book I have ever read." Still, I recommend this book to everyone. ;)

This book is amaaaazing. If you're a fellow bibliophile, I would highly recommend this book. One great perk about it is that a lot of the books they describe in here can be found for free in the Kindle store! :D i have wanted this for some time. It will force me to read outside of my comfort zone. So far I have downloaded two of the earliest books and put four others on my wish list. Being fairly well read, I do recognize many of the titles, but lots of new ones, too. It will be a great place to find titles to expand my knowledge.

I recently found out about this book via a Goodreads group. I like reading challenges and I think this will be a good way to challenge myself. I like to think of myself as a well-rounded reader, but there are many titles in this list that I had never heard of prior to purchasing the book. I did notice that it is all fiction books and doesn't include Shakespeare or Beowulf or Gilgamesh, so apparently verse and plays are not included either. I would like to see another list to include some of the other literary genres and not just fiction. I do like that the chosen titles come from around the world and are not just focused on British and American literature.

I Have only read the list. Several I have read, I am 82 yo and I may read a few more . It is a great list of books, FPT

This is a cool book. Looks like I have about 850 books I still need to read.
