Theodore C. Denise received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan and taught at Syracuse University. Nicholas White obtained his Ph.D. from Harvard University and currently serves as chair of the philosophy department at the University of California, Irvine. He specializes in Greek philosophy, epistemology, and ethics, having written several books and articles on each of these topics. Sheldon P. Peterfreund taught at Syracuse University for over 40 years, and received his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

Tough read. This is due in part that the authors seem to go back and forth about topics. It's as if they take you through their thought process and finally arrive at the point rather than logically stating what they are "attempting" to say. By the time I'm done reading a sentence, I've lost my train of thought. The formatting is all over the place and one can become lost in the topic at hand.

Very interesting book. My used copy was a little banged up on the outside, but it was perfect for class and at a WAY better price than the campus bookstore.

The book was ok but it was damaged when I received it. The cover and side was ripped/torn Great book!

This book covers a wide range of ethicists and discusses their impact on ethics as a whole, while moving through their respective eras. I would recommend this book to any student interested in ethics.

Book is in horrible condition

A bit of water damage from shipping. Other than that it is what I need.

What can i say it is ethics. I think this class is tough period. most people i have spoken to who come from different backgrounds and different age categories report the same thing..."it can be confusing". I know there are some people who understand ethics and the teachings without any problems; but the language they used only confused me and it didnt help that my teacher was also teaching logic..ugh
