Customer Reviews

It is not often that a book makes me want to laugh, cry, and cry from laughing, but Mr Cahill's brilliant writing did just that. Scott has the ability to make every situation fun and he does a great job describing the food and fun that I checked travel sites about a Hawaiian trip of my own.

I was already familiar with the "Hips Trip" real life, traveling adventure series due to first reading the very entertaining "Hips Trips Seattle" book, without the knowledge at the time that that book was a part of a 4 part series of the hilarious adventures/misadventures of the author Scott Cahill and his brothers (or brother) to different parts of the world and what random craziness they can get in to and the delicious foods and drinks they can get their hands on. After reading "Seattle", and being very impressed and entertained by it, I had to read the next one and like the "Seattle" book, this latest installment "Hips Trips Honolulu," is more of the fun same, which is no doubt a compliment as these true story adventures are written with the author's unique wit and detailed descriptions that help me as the reader feel like I am actually right there with Scott and his brother Chris, wandering around the tropical paradise of Honolulu, Hawaii in person and letting fate dictate what happens next. Unlike the last book I read though, this story does delve into more deeper and personal material, as the hero of the story actually receives some bad news before embarking on this journey, which sets the course for some very deep, yet hilariously random inner reflections, while we the reader learn the Japanese saying of "Please sit down," but if said by Samuel L. Jackson, (You'll know what I mean when you get to that part) and receive wise tips of how to save money when getting your daily coffee in the morning, plus other hilarious and interesting gems, advice and experiences. Despite the soul searching moments, the story never lags or loses it's wit. If anything, they are heartfelt moments that provide a nice touch to differentiate this book from the last. This story has a lot of heart. My favorite parts, like in the "Seattle" book, is Cahill's love of eating and trying out different types of foods, where he will deliciously describe the various tastes and experiences right down to a tee, that can't help but make you feel absolutely hungry while and/or after reading this book. I really had another fun time reading about Cahill and his recent odyssey and can't wait to read the other two books of this series. This book "Hips Trips Honolulu" as well as the "Seattle" one, are highly recommended and very cheap to purchase. Definitely check them out but be prepared to laugh out loud, learn some helpful travelling tips and observations and feel like you're completely starving. 5 stars.
