Marjan van Zeyl was born in Amsterdam. A prolific artist, she has illustrated numerous books for children, including The Apple Cake; Dora Duck and the Juicy Pears; The Tree That Grew Through the Roof; and Little Red Riding-Hood.

As a big fan of gentle literature for my kids, this book fits the bill. It's a peaceful story, with a lovely message of giving without expectations, taking care of your neighbor, and placing yourself in someone else's position. The artwork is soothing, and so is the cadence of the story.

Absolutely the sweetest tale, offering a beautiful lesson for children.

Beautifully illustrated and beautifully told. My daughter loves the story (3 years) and is enjoying telling me about it.

A delightful and timeless children's story that tells of the circle of giving. I have read this story to my daughter since she was five years old and even though she is now nine and quite capable of reading to herself the Apple Cake still remains one of the few books that she will ask to have Mommy read to her before she goes to sleep. Beautifully illustrated with a recipe for apple cake. Highly recommended as a children's bedtime story.

Love love this book

This is such a sweet fall story. My kids love it

A super sweet story that we will keep in our Autumn books box to read year after year. The artwork and words are both beautiful.

A very lovely book. The story is sweet and charming and the pictures are soft and sweet. This book really keeps the interest of the children. It follows an old woman who wants to make apple cake but doesn't have apples and how she goes about getting them through meeting and trading with other people. I'd recommend it greatly. For ages 3 to 8
