Elizabeth LaBan is a Philadelphia-based writer, editor, and mother of two. Barbara Trostler is Elizabeth's mother and the grandmother of two. Dr. Myron LaBan is Elizabeth's father-in-law and the grandfather of five.

Fun handbook for new grandparents. Today's pediatricians do things differently than the way it was done 30 years ago when I had my children. Good tips, necessary information and fun things to do with your grandchild from birth and older. I received it as a gift when I became a grandparent. Now, I'm giving them as gifts to new grandparents!

Perfect grandparents-to-be gift! The cover is very cute, the book area is smaller and fits great into a small gift bag. We presented it in a yellow nondescript bag. In a few seconds my mother-in-law's face lit up! Surprise!!

I bought one for myself and one for new grandparents. I have read all through mine and I love it. It has some great ideas for sharing with your grandkids indoors and out. Will use some of the games this week end. One hint I loved was: when going to your child's house greet him/her first then the grandkids. This is great, after all they gave you those wonderful blessings!! Sometimes that can be hard when my granddaughters meet me at the door though:-)

Nice book but no great revelations

Excellent advice handbook for new grandparents

I enjoyed this book and I will use it again when the baby arrives. It gives great advice. Things have changed since we were parents. I enjoyed advice from all family members. I enjoyed being reminded of the songs and games we almost forgot. It also reminds us we are not the parent and that is really important. There are new ideas we need to be told about ie. tummy time, no blankets in the crib. The one thing we all can give is love and this book showed everyone can be involved peacefully and Grandparents have an important roll in the baby's life.

Like that it is in a diary style book. Also at the beginning of each chapter it has wise words from other grandparents. This is what I bought it for tips to grandparents about boundaries. Do not give advice, grandparents are not their parents etc etc. Has a lot of games that some grandparents just wouldn't do. The print is too small is the only complaint really. Not sure if all grandparents can read that small!

Great gift idea for the first time grandparents !! Highly recommend !
